NEW GEM NAMED FOR J. PIERPONT MORGAN

NEW YORK, Dec. 5 .- A newly-dis covered gem of brilliant rose color was christefied Morganite tonight by illustration, and contains besides features of general interest, stories of the New York A ademy of Science, particular timeliness. The cotton in it was named for J. Pierpont Morgan on the suggestion of Dr. George F. Kunz, chairman of the geological see tion of the academy.

"Morganite," said Dr. Kunz, "is a new year. George F. Henshall and col. C. J. McCarthy becoming associated with the editorial and business fees from other baryls in that it departments respectively. fers from other baryls in that it shows an intense cherry red when exposed to Roentgen rays. found in magnificent gems, weighing from one carat to 100 carats each The Morganite is of a beautiful brilliant rose color, of wonderful freedom from flaws. It is found principally in the mountainous regions of Mount Bity and the islands off the oast of Madagascar.
